DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Aigner USPN 4,540,402.

See page 3 of the office action mailed 12-31-02

Claims 1, 5, 6, and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Marhurkar USPN 4,134,402.

See page 4 of the office action dated 12-31-02

Claims 1, 11 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Palestrant USPN 5,618,267.

See page 4 of the office action dated 12-31-02

Claims 1-2, 4, 6-8, 12, 27-30 38-41, 43-45, 48 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Runge USPN 5,785,686.

Runge teaches a catheter with first and second distal ends with a first end being shown at 11a and the second being at location 12 at it's tapered end. Runge has several apertures, extending from the distal end to "near" the proximal end. These apertures will also draw or deliver fluids to aid in perfusing (depending on how the device is inserted into the body) in the same fashion as applicant's means and are thus considered equivalents. The catheter is connected to a pump by inflow and outflow conduits 3 and 4. The catheter is fully capable of performing applicant's statements of intended use, which statements are otherwise given little or no patentable weight. The examiner considers the branch portion of the catheter to be a y-connector and to serve as an indicator when inserting the catheter. The examiner notes that the Runge catheter is capable of being operated without inflating the balloons.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 5, 9-11, 47 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Runge. Applicant differs from Runge in reciting a tapered tip at the first distal end, a radiopaque marker and a j-tip. Arguably the Runge reference shows a J- configuration, however it is believed that the claim is limited to preformed tips. Nevertheless, each of these elements are conventional items for assisting the insertion of the catheter into the body and to have included such configurations to Runge to aid in inserting it into the heart would have been obvious.

Applicant's arguments filed 3-27-03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant spends a fair amount of energy in describing how their specification the Aigner specification differ but offer little structure detail in the claims that define over Aigner. Applicant's best argument is drawn to what constitutes a "proximal end". The examiner considers the Aigner proximal end to include the entire region where the feed tubes come together. Applicant thus be more specific in describing the limitation. In addition, the applicant uses the relative term "near" in describing the relationship between the aperture and the proximal end. This of course offers no discernable limitation at all. If applicant were to claim that the aperture is located on the proximal half as opposed to the distal half of the catheter the limitation would impart meaning to the apertures location. Applicant did not appear to address the Marhurkar or Palestrandt rejections in the last office action.
